Statement of Abilities:

Mr. Zerbe began his career in the Internet Service Provider (ISP) industry in 1995 when he created his first startup called Vsurf internet, which was the ISP division of the Virtropolis Corp. After creating Vsurf and developing it into a 20,000 user dial-up and hosting company, it was sold.

In 1998 Dean joined Innocom Systems which was a computer builder, where he held fifty percent ownership in Bay Area Info Serve (BAIS). Mr. Zerbe completely re-engineered BAIS to become compliant with 56K and V.90 dial-up requirements. In addition BAIS extended their product line to include frame relay and Co-Location services. Innocom had transformed from a computer builder into a consulting company that built high end servers and offered onsite and remote customer support, when Mr. Zerbe moved to join Masterlink in 2000. Masterlink was in the process of building a 10,000 server datacenter with requirements of wire speed network access inside the building, 20,000 Ethernet ports and a managed services division. Masterlink then became NACIO Systems. While with NACIO, Mr. Zerbe engineered the datacenter network and was in charge of the managed services division.

Mr. Zerbe then created Intellextrace with Dave Ranghiasi in 2001. Originally created to offer high-end support to other consultants, in 2003 Intellextrace transformed and Mr. Darren Stich to start the Wholesale telecom division.

Mr. Zerbe also has experience with Cisco switches routers and load balancers. Foundry switches, routers and load balancers, Extreme switches and routers, F5 BIG IP, and the Lucent Definity Phone Switch.
